NDEC Women In Cyber Virtual Work Experience Day – 8 March

As part of the National Digital Exploitation Centre's work to help increase gender diversity within the cyber sector here in Wales, we are holding a virtual work experience day for girls on 8th March 2021 (International Women's Day).

This celebration of women in the industry is open to secondary-aged girls and will offer a fun-filled day of activities and inspiring talks, along with the chance to network with other girls with similar interests.

You can see a bit more about the itinerary for the day here along with details of how to sign-up: Experience > View Opportunity Details \(s4snextgen.org\)

I am hoping that you can pass this on to any young women you know who are interested in the cyber security industry, or pass it around your own networks.

It may be of particular interest to:

- Those who are currently undertaking, or have undertaken the CyberFirst girls competition, as it will be a great follow up session for them.
- Girls you think need a bit of a confidence boost to enter this field, as a large focus of the day will be supporting these girls to find an element of cyber that they are passionate about & helping them to create a female support network.
- Teacher lookings to increase gender diversity of their STEM subjects this will be useful to you too, as we will also talk about the importance of taking some STEM subjects, particularly computer science, to aid entry into the industry.
